Solution If You Wrongly Activated Coupon With Personal Gmail Account
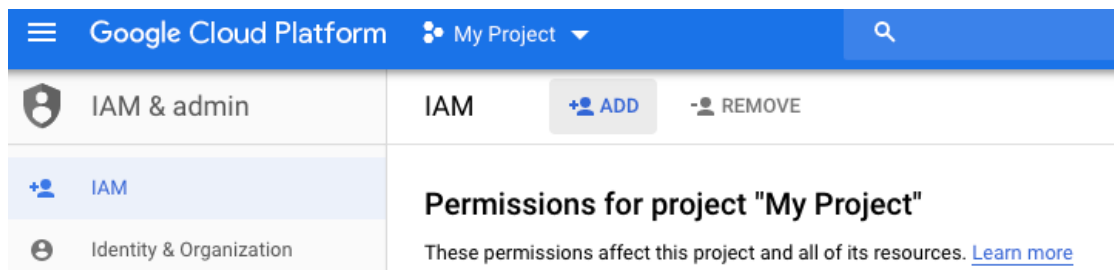

For those who activated coupon codes with non-lionmail account:
Coupons actually create a new Billing Account, so you can just link that Billing Account to a GCP project under the GCP Organization for Columbia.

1. You can create a new Google Cloud project (using your Columbia email and the Columbia GCP organization). As you done before to create any project.

2. Add your non-school email as a Project Owner on the IAM page (https://console.cloud.google.com/iam-admin/iam?_ga=2.242444034.-1267767919.1550615012&pli=1)

   a) Under IAM page, Click on "ADD"

   b) At the page pop up, enter the email address in New member column, and select Owner as the role. Then save.

3. Set up Billing for that Columbia project using your non-Columbia account
   a) Click the menu button at the upper left corner and go to "Billing" page, and click "Account management" under "Billing" menu. (You should see page like below)

b) Under "Projects linked to this billing account", click "Change billing". Then you should be able to change billing to the Gmail account you added as owner before.
4. c) Check (How to Modify a Project's Billing Settings (Links to an external site.)) for more detailed info.

Remember don't link any credit card to billing. Hope this method helps.
